Grammar - Lesson 3: Nominalisation

Nominalisation

Part 1: Proofreading quiz

Each sentence contains TWO errors: one in an inversion structure and one in a relative clause. Proofread the sentences.

Not only social media connects people instantly, but it also spreads stories which is often false.
Rarely teenagers check the sources of the news they read online, which make them easy to fool.
Only by setting clear screen-time rules parents can help their children, who often spends hours gaming.
Never the school has considered banning phones in class, which is used by nearly every student.
Seldom students will question the news which they read it on social media.

Part 2: Nominalisation in formal writing

Nominalisation names an action or a quality as a noun, so that ‘people use phones’ becomes ‘the use of phones’. Naming ideas in this way packs a sentence into fewer words and gives formal writing a more academic tone. It is one of the clearest signs of a higher band in DSE Paper 2.

Study how each plain sentence is converted. The new version names the action or quality as a noun and sounds more mature, yet the meaning stays the same.

Plain	More formal
People use their phones all day long.	The widespread use of smartphones worries teachers and parents.
The company will improve its online security system.	The improvement of the company’s online security system will begin next month.
Young people depend on their phones too much.	Young people’s heavy dependence on their phones shows no sign of weakening.
Students should be aware of online privacy.	Awareness of online privacy is now taught in many schools.
The government decided to control social media companies more strictly.	The government’s decision to regulate social media companies has won public support.
Tech companies should be responsible for users’ data.	Tech companies must accept responsibility for users’ data.
Because people share news very quickly, rumours spread fast.	The rapid sharing of news allows rumours to spread quickly.
Many people prefer reading news on social media to reading newspapers.	Young people’s preference for social media news over newspapers has reshaped the whole news industry.

The short paragraphs below use the same idea. Notice how the nominalised phrases fit naturally into the sentences — nothing is forced.

The introduction of a school digital-literacy programme deserves serious consideration. It would give students the skills to manage their screen time and to judge online information for themselves, reducing the risk of cyberbullying and online scams. Parents and teachers alike would welcome such a step.

The importance of digital skills in the modern workplace can hardly be overstated. Students who master online tools at school gain a clear advantage when they graduate, while those who ignore them risk falling further behind. Schools, therefore, should treat digital literacy as a core subject rather than an option.

Owing to the widespread use of smartphones, many students struggle to concentrate for long periods. Revision tasks that once took half an hour now stretch over a whole evening, interrupted by notifications arriving every few minutes. Setting clear screen-time limits at home would benefit both study and sleep.

Part 3: Practice sets

First, warm up by turning words into nouns. Then rewrite each simple sentence using nominalisation. The sentences are about technology and communication, so keep the register formal. The last three sets (4, 5 and 6) are more challenging.

Warm-up: From words to nouns

Write the noun form of each word.

Word	Noun
decide introduce communicate regulate improve develop aware important depend responsible

Example Set 1 (Turn verbs into nouns)

Simple sentence:	People use social media all the time, so they cannot concentrate on their studies.
------------------	--

Prompt:	Turn the verb ‘use’ into a noun and begin with ‘The constant use of ...’.

Example Set 2 (Turn verbs into nouns)

Simple sentence:	The school decided to introduce a new e-learning platform, and many students welcomed the idea.
Prompt:	Turn ‘decided to introduce’ into a noun phrase that opens the sentence.

Example Set 3 (Turn adjectives into nouns)

Simple sentence:	Parents worry that young people are too dependent on their smartphones.
Prompt:	Turn ‘dependent’ into a noun: begin with ‘Many parents worry about young people’s ...’.

Example Set 4 (Turn adjectives into nouns)

Simple sentence:	Students are much more aware of online privacy than they were ten years ago.
Prompt:	Turn ‘aware’ into a noun and rewrite the sentence without the verb ‘are’.

Example Set 5 (Turn because / if clauses into noun phrases)

Simple sentence:	Because technology is developing very quickly, schools have to keep updating their computers and software.
Prompt:	Replace the whole ‘Because ...’ clause with a phrase beginning ‘Owing to the rapid ...’.

Example Set 6 (Turn because / if clauses into noun phrases)

Simple sentence:	If the government does not control social media companies more strictly, online scams will just keep growing.
Prompt:	Replace the ‘If ...’ clause with a noun phrase beginning with ‘Without ...’.

Part 4: Writing Task

Instructions:

1. Your school magazine is running a series called ‘Life in the Digital Age’. Write ONE paragraph (about 80 words) giving your opinion on whether young people today are able to tell real news from fake news, and suggesting ONE thing schools could do to help them.

2. Use TWO noun phrases formed by nominalisation and ONE relative clause.
